3SG Corporation and the Franklin County Court Clerk Fight Crime by Going Digital

DUBLIN, OH, July, 2007: 3SG Corporation is pleased to announce that it was selected by the Municipal Court Clerk's office to continue with the next phase of converting the Court's paper court documents into digital images. Instant access to digital court documents makes it easier for police to fight crime.

"The Clerk's office is pleased with this new imaging program and believes it will improve the ability for this office to provide court records in a timely manner," said Municipal Court Clerk, Lori M. Tyack.

One goal of this effort is to make it easier for police to access records on the computers in their patrol cars to check for pending warrants on the people they arrest. The electronic images converted by 3SG will be accessed in real time by the Division of Police. In some cases, having this nearly immediate knowledge of a suspect's past history is critical to an officer's safety.

A Columbus City Councilmember explained that when a police officer is investigating a crime, seconds count and that the 3SG electronic imaging project will cut at least 20 minutes off the time it now takes a clerk official to locate a paper file and get that information to an officer in the field.

Columbus City Council recently appropriated the funds to convert paper court documents into digital files. More than 25 million documents have been converted with 25 million more for the period from 2003-2007 to be completed, according to the Municipal Court's office. Documents will be converted at 3SG and some active documents will be scanned and converted onsite at the Court's office.

The Court's office stressed that the documents will not be released online until there is assurance of protection of any personal information.
